ISLAND DEFENDERS MAKE EVERY VOLLEY COUNT AGAINST FOE

Isolated But Dauntless Defenders Pour Volleys Into Tightening Cordon

RAIDS ARE RELENTLESS

Helplessly Surrounded and Cut Off From Any Reinforcements

By Joseph A. Bors
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Apr. 14—(INS)—Making every shell count, Corregidor's isolated but dauntless gunners today poured well-spaced, devastating volleys into the tightening Japanese cordon to prolong the battle for Manila Bay, while elsewhere in the Philippines defending units harassed the invaders mercilessly.

In the face of relentless air raids and constant pounding by Jap siege guns, the fort's anti-aircraft batteries kept enemy bombers flying too high for accurate bombing while defending artillery exacted a terrific toll from the conquerors of Bataan.

Hopelessly surrounded and cut off from reinforcements, Corregidor, nevertheless, remained the symbol of American determination to fight aggression to the end of human endurance, just as the defenders of Bataan fought on until they collapsed from exhaustion before a fresh, superior force.

Also spurred by the memory of Bataan's heroic defenders, American-Filipino units in other sections of the commonwealth continued their resistance through hit-and-run raids designed to prevent the enemy from consolidating early gains.

Next to the Manila area, the scene of most successful counter-blows has been the island of Mindanao, far to the south of the route to Australia. It was there two weeks ago that one of Lieut. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright's

Men of Fellowship League Hear Miss Kathryn Bieri

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Apr. 14—An interesting account of her lengthy journey through South American countries last year was presented last evening by Miss Kathryn Bieri, Philadelphia, when she addressed members of the Men's Christian Fellowship League of Lower Bucks County. The meeting was held in Cornwells Methodist Church.

Miss Bieri, a missionary to India for several years, last year toured mission stations and schools in South America, and her talk last night was interesting and enlightening.

Howard Smoyer, Bristol, retiring president, expressed to the group appreciation for support during his administration. He is being succeeded as president by Raymond Dewees, of Newportville.

Plans were completed for the annual banquet to be held in Bristol Methodist Church on Friday evening. The May 11th meeting will take place in Bensalem Methodist Church, when an address on the life of Abraham Lincoln will be given.

BETROTHED

The engagement of Miss Lucy Di Tanna, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Di Tanna, Brook street, to Salvatore Fusco, son of Mrs. Jennie Miesto, Trenton, N. J., was announced by Miss Di Tanna's brother, Louis Di Tanna, Philadelphia, at a party held at the Di Tanna home on Saturday evening. Guests were present from Philadelphia, Trenton and Bristol.

Resident of Langhorne To Be Buried Tomorrow

LANGHORNE, Apr. 14—Miss Florence V. Marple, who died on Saturday evening at the home of her sister, Mrs. Ida M. Heritage, North Bellevue avenue, will be buried in Churchville Cemetery. The service will be held tomorrow at two p. m. at the Horner funeral home here. The Rev. Charles Yrigoyen, pastor of Langhorne Methodist Church, will officiate.

The deceased, the daughter of the late Alfred and Anna Vansant Marple, was a member of Langhorne Methodist Church, and of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of that church. She was also a member of the local W. C. T. U.

REROUTE BUSES HERE TO AID DEFENSE WORKERS

Both Eastbound and Westbound Buses, During Certain Hours, Will Pass Fleetwings

THE SCHEDULE IS GIVEN

The Neibauer Bus Co., operating between Morrisville and Torresdale, has re-routed its buses during some hours of the day, so as to better serve workers employed in defense plants in this area. This change in routes effects Bristol only.

A spokesman for the Neibauer Co., today said: "Due to the rationing of gasoline and tires and the necessary curtailment in the use of private cars, our buses have been re-routed through Bristol so as to better serve defense workers in this area."

The eastbound buses through Bristol during certain hours now go over Monroe street to Radcliffe street, pass through the barricade onto Radcliffe street and continue along Radcliffe street to the intersection of Route 13. Buses taking this route are the ones which have been scheduled to arrive at Cleveland street and Farragut avenue at 6:45; 7:15; 7:45, and 8:15 a. m. Buses scheduled at the same point at 3:15; 3:45; 4:15; 4:45; 5:15, and 5:45 p. m., also take this route.

Arriving at the intersection of Route 13 the buses will continue over the regular route.

Westbound buses scheduled to arrive at Cleveland street and Farragut avenue at the times given below are now routed over Radcliffe street, through the barricade to Monroe street, thence on Monroe street to Farragut avenue and then continue the regular route through Bristol:

6:35; 7:05; 7:35, and 8:05 a. m. Buses scheduled at the same point at 3:05; 3:35; 4:05; 4:35; 5:05, and 5:35 p. m.

CROYDON

Croydon Defense Council has changed its meeting place from Croydon fire station to Harrington Hall, 4th avenue. Members meet on Thursday nights at eight o'clock.

John McGowan, a soldier in the U. S. Army, and grandson of Mrs. Jennie Smith, has been transferred from Camp Meade, Md., to an undetermined destination. McGowan, who was recalled to army service recently, had previously spent three years in Hawaii. He is a nephew of the late Charles Allen Smith, a hero of the Mexican war, and whose memory was honored a few years ago by erection of a statue in McPherson Square, Philadelphia.

Entertains in Honor of Granddaughter's Birthday

Mrs. Arthur Britton, Pond street, entertained at her home on Saturday in honor of the ninth birthday anniversary of her granddaughter, Carolyn Burtonwood, of Beaver street.

The little guests enjoyed games, each winning a prize, with special prizes being awarded to Rose Marie Castor and Elvera Missera. Others present were: Helen and Rita Ciotti, Marie, Anna and Frances DeRisi, "Junior" Castor, and Doris Paletta. Refreshments were served.

TAYLOR ATTACKS THE CANDIDACY OF DAVIS

Says If He is Elected There Won't Be A Republican Party in Four Years

MARTIN ALSO SPEAKS

PHILADELPHIA, Apr. 14—(INS)—State Senator M. Harvey Taylor today piled more fuel on the heated Republican gubernatorial battle with the charge that if U. S. Senator James J. Davis is elected Governor, "we won't have a Republican party in Pennsylvania in four years."

Taylor, campaign manager for Major General Martin, charged that Davis has "no party spirit and uses the Republican Party only as a vehicle to help himself personally." He spoke at the formal opening of Martin's Philadelphia campaign headquarters.

Declaring that "one American is worth five Japs," Martin called on Pennsylvanians for unswerving patriotism in the all-out war effort. He asked for support of his bid for the gubernatorial nomination as "Pennsylvania's No. 1 soldier" of 44 years experience.

8 BUCKS COUNTY DISTRICTS EXCEED RED CROSS QUOTAS

Bristol, Langhorne, Morrisville, Yardley, Newtown Among Group

CHAPTER IS ADVANCING

Corporate Gifts From Bristol Branch Total Sum of $19,000

The fifty-eight suburban branches of the Southeastern Pennsylvania Chapter of the American Red Cross are within striking distance of their combined $350,000 War Fund quota. Blackwell Newhall, campaign chairman, announced yesterday.

With the war campaign as a whole within 25 per cent of its $2,500,000 quota, the suburban branches have already raised approximately $337,000, leaving only $13,000 to reach their objective, Mr. Newhall said.

Pointing out that six more branches reached their individual quotas during the past week raising the number of branches which have already exceeded their goal to 30, Mr. Newhall predicted that workers in the suburbs, spurred on by the news of the fall of Bataan, will be quick to raise the remaining $13,000 needed to complete the branches' total.

"Our branch workers, appreciative that the Red Cross is now the only agency in a position to bring relief to many men taken prisoner or seriously wounded in the Philippines, will not be content to simply complete their quota, but will be inspired to seek additional gifts and raise considerably more than their $350,000 objective."

The six branches which have passed their goals since the previous report are Langhorne, with $3336.35 against a $3,000 quota; Manoa, $29 past its $1,000 goal; and Yeading, with $1,500 raised against a quota of $1,000.

The Main Line Branch, with a quota of $55,000—the largest quota of any Branch which does not include industrial and larger gifts—has raised $53,200 and so is within $1,800 of its goal.

To date eight of the 13 Bucks County branches have surpassed the assigned quota.

Bristol Branch has already secured $14,063.13, a sum well exceeding the $12,500 quota. In addition corporate gifts from Bristol Branch area totaled $19,000, making a grand donation from Bristol Branch section of $33,063.13 to date.

In addition to Bristol and Langhorne areas, the districts in this county which have exceeded the assigned amount are here listed with quota and amount raised stated in that order: Morrisville, $2,000, $2,010; Newtown, $2,000, $3,013.90; Perkasie, $1,000, $2,410; Sellersville, $1,000, $1,114; Southampton, $2,000, $3,200; Yardley, $1,000, $1,072.35.

The remaining districts in the county, with the quotas and sums raised to date are listed in the order named: Doylestown, $10,000, $7,347.86; Lower Bensalem, $1,000, $871.50; New Hope, $3,000, $1,075; Quakertown, $4,000, $600; Wycombe, $750, $501.

DOYLESTOWN SCHOOL TAX RATE TO BE BOOSTED

Budget Temporarily Adopted Calls For An Increase of Two Mills

3 SALARY PROPOSALS

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 14—The School Board has adopted, subject to final approval, at the meeting next month, a budget of $121,850 which calls for an increase of two mills in the tax rate.

Supervising Principal J. Leonard Halderman, who explained the 44 teachers deserve an increase in salary and need it because of the increased costs in living, submitted three salary proposals which included raises ranging from $6350 to $7500.

Declaring that there has been no raise in the millage for school taxes within the last seven years, Mr. Halderman suggested that the proposed budget represents an increase of $6,250 over the 1941-42 budget and that it would be better to increase the tax rate two mills now than one mill at a time within the next two years.

Mr. Halderman reported that total receipts for last year amounted to $62,738.59, and that expenses amounted to $57,352.45, leaving an estimated balance of $5,386.14.

William H. Satterthwaite, Jr., president of the board, who explained he didn't like any of the three salary proposals, explained that one of them appealed to him more than the other two.

He suggested that the stipulation of $2800 for the purchase of new school land and development of the new school tract could be cut down.

"If you will remember," Mr. Halderman explained "the sum of $2,000 in that item was set aside for the purchase of two more acres from the Burpee farm and the sum of $800 is to be used toward developing the present new school site."

WORLD TRAVELER TO TALK TO FATHERS HERE

Herbert C. Lanks Will Be The Speaker at Meeting Tomorrow Night

ALL MEN ARE INVITED

Tomorrow night a speaker of renown will address the members of the Bristol Fathers Association at the regular meeting of the Association to be held in the high school cafeteria at eight o'clock.

The program for this meeting has been arranged in keeping with the annual observance of Pan-American Day which occurs today.

The speaker, Herbert C. Lanks, of Jenkintown, has returned from a tour from the Caribbean Sea to the Strait of Magellan, almost at the tip of the South American continent. This amazing trip carried over 13,000 miles down the West Coast and up the East Coast of South America. They visited every republic and every capital with the exception of Paraguay and its capital, Asuncion. Mr. Lanks took many beautiful pictures.

Baseball Makes Debut Today

By International News Service
Baseball—America's No. 1 sport—makes its annual debut today under war-time conditions.

More than 200,000 fans will crowd into the bleachers and grandstands to witness the unveiling of the 1939 season of the national pastime.

Chief opening day interest as usual was centered in Washington where President Roosevelt was invited to throw out the first ball in the game between the Senators and the New York Yankees. War time exigencies, however, may force the President to remain at his desk and miss his first opening game since he entered the White House in 1933.

Effect of the war was apparent in the starting line-ups of the major league clubs with many familiar faces now in the armed forces of Uncle Sam. The opening day schedule finds in the American League: New York at Washington; Philadelphia at Boston; St. Louis at Chicago and Cleveland at Detroit. In the National League, Brooklyn at New York; Boston at Philadelphia; Pittsburgh at Cincinnati and Chicago at St. Louis.

LATEST NEWS BULLETINS

"War Guilt" Trials at Riom Called Off

London—Bowing to Hitler's demands, Chief of State Marshal Petain today restored pro-Nazi Pierre Laval as vice premier of France and called off the "war guilt" trial at Riom, according to reliable information received in London. Complete domination by Germany of unoccupied as well as occupied France is now anticipated.

The British were disturbed over this development, especially in view of the Far Eastern situation. Reports are that France will hand the island of Madagascar, off the East African coast, to Japan, a move which would virtually insure the Axis control of the Indian Ocean.

Laval's reported reinstatement followed by a few hours rejection by the United States of a protest from Petain's government over appointment of an American consul general to Brazzaville, Free French Africa.

Today's turnover in Vichy was regarded in London as certain indication that Hitler, deeply preoccupied with his Russian problems, is anxious to make the western front secure without incurring the risk of any German loss of life.

His best bet toward this end, according to a London view, was to reintroduce Laval into the Petain cabinet, thus ensuring complete pro-German administration of unoccupied France.

Petaim May Reinstate Laval

Washington—American officials today were gravely concerned over Vichy reports that Marshal Petain has decided to reorganize his cabinet and may reinstate former vice premier Pierre Laval, leader of the pro-German collaborationist movement.

No official confirmation has yet been received that Laval actually is returning to the Vichy Government, but if the reports prove true, relations between the United States and Vichy are expected to take a turn for the worse.

Iran Breaks Relations with Japan

Teheran—The Government of Iran today decided to break off relations with Japan.

The Government's decision followed its discovery that the Japanese legation was a center of anti-United Nations propaganda and was acting as the paymaster for Axis agents. Iran, it is understood, took action on its own initiative.

Apparently fated to be the battleground in the Axis drive eastward, Iran now is in control of British and Russian forces, who effected a peaceful occupation some time ago.

Lend-Lease Equipment Continues to Flow

London—The United States already has sent $2,400,000,000 worth of lend lease war materials to Britain and a steady stream is expected whether the nation can pay the bill or not. Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Kingsley Wood told the House of Commons today.

"Lend lease deliveries from the United States are a vital factor in our war effort," he said in presenting his budget for the current year. He said that a larger proportion of the total henceforth will be transferred to India and the dominions.

PATTON'S PIGS POKE AROUND PUSHING OUT SILVERWARE WHICH SLIPPED THROUGH BRISTOL HOUSEWIVES' FINGERS INTO PORKERS' CHOWDER

Bristol house wives who have lost silverware during the past 12 months and who are of the opinion that it slipped into the family garbage pail, now have an opportunity to retrieve it. No it will not be necessary to dig through the garbage—all that has been done by Patton's pigs. E. Paul Patton is the official garbage collector for Bristol Borough and when he took the contract last May he pledged that all silverware salvaged would be returned at the end of the year.

Now Mr. Patton must certainly have educated his swine because he writes Borough Council that 63 articles have been recovered. In his communication to Council Mr. Patton does not state just how the silverware was recovered, whether it was pushed out by Patton's pigs as they poked through their chowder or whether some other means was employed.

Mr. Patton's letter to Council reads: Gentlemen:

As our term for the collection of garbage in the Borough of Bristol will expire on May 1st, we believe that some arrangement should be made to return to the citizens of Bristol, the silver and silverplate which we have salvaged since May 1, 1941. We naturally wish to do this at minimum inconvenience to the Borough Officials and consequently suggest that a notice be published in the Bristol Courier which will advise the citizens that 63 articles have been recovered and that any householder, whose sets are short, write to E. Paul Patton, Eddington, Pa., describing what is missing and the type or make it is. We will then endeavor to contact the people writing us and try to see that each piece is returned to its rightful owner.

So far, five pieces of sterling silver have been found, four of which are intialled.

Any silver (which of course includes silver plate) which we are unable to find the true owner of, will be turned over to the Borough, in accordance with our agreement when we were awarded the 1941 contract.

E. PAUL PATTON,
Garbage Collector
The list includes teaspoons, table spoons, forks, baby spoons.

CADET BOOSTER ASS'N TO OPEN ANNUAL DRIVE

Will Canvass for Memberships As A Backing To American Legion Cadets

PUBLIC AID IS SOUGHT

The annual membership drive of the American Legion Cadet Booster Association is scheduled to get underway on Thursday, April 16th.

Not only the Cadets and officers of the Booster Association, but all admirers of the corps, are eager for the success of the drive, as the funds received are used for general maintenance of the organization. The money derived is used for purchase of uniforms and instruments, repairs, etc.

Letters are being sent to present and former members and others, in the hope that a generous response in $1 memberships will be received. Cards are distributed to many parts of the United States by mail, the association having members as far away as California and Maine.

A canvass is also to be made within the borough of Bristol.

The Cadet Booster Association drive was postponed from February in order to make way for other canvasses for funds being held locally. The Boosters hope that the same fine support as usual will be accorded them, with residents backing the Cadets to the utmost. Cadets will in many instances also contact those to whom letters are mailed.

Money may be given to any member of the cadet corps or to any of the Boosters; or the same may be mailed to Mrs. Helen Satterthwaite, 249 Madison street, chairman of the drive committee.

Mrs. Victor H. Morgan Dies in Trenton Hospital

Death yesterday claimed Mrs. Mary McCoy Morgan, wife of Victor H. Morgan, in Mercer Hospital, Trenton, N. J. Mrs. Morgan was known to many Bristolians, she being a sister of Mrs. John H. Wichser, Dorrance street, and of Mrs. A. L. Jennings, Lancaster, in addition to her husband she is survived by a daughter, Dorothy.

The service will be held from a funeral home at 77 Prospect street, Trenton, N. J., on Thursday afternoon at two o'clock. Burial will be in Bristol Cemetery, and friends may call Wednesday evening between seven and nine o'clock.

Croydon Manor Man Escapes Serious Injury in Crash

Striking a pole at the side of Bristol Pike, Eddington, last evening, John Wallace, Croydon Manor, escaped serious harm. His only injury was a bruised nose.

Wallace, who was enroute home from his employment in Philadelphia, states that he attempted to avoid striking a car, when "crowded" on the thoroughfare, and hit the pole, which snapped off. His car was considerably damaged.

ENGAGEMENT MADE KNOWN

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Tomesani, Mill street, announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Julia Tomesani, to Private Robert W. Schemley, son of Mrs. N. Grosky, Mill street, on Sunday, at a dinner party. Members of the immediate families were served at Leghorn Farms, near Morrisville. Miss Tomesani received many gifts. No date has been set for the wedding. Private Schemley, who is located at Eatontown, N. J., is home on a 10-day furlough.

COUNCIL AIDS BUILDING OF NEW ROADWAY HERE

Will Dedicate Three Acres of Land and Contribute $2500 Toward the Project

A "DEFENSE" HIGHWAY

Contract for Collection of Garbage is Awarded to John Lesnevec

Steps to facilitate building of the proposed new highway which will touch the northern edges of the fourth ward were taken, contract for the collection of garbage awarded and the borough engineer was authorized to contact the State Highway Department requesting a study of traffic conditions at Bath, Otter and Mill streets, at a meeting of Bristol Borough Council last night.

Council adopted a resolution offered by William Warner, chairman of Street and Highway Committee, which pledged the Borough to dedicate three acres of land and to contribute $2500 toward any land damages which might arise, due to the construction of the new highway, which will extend for a distance of approximately 5043.9 feet through the Borough.

The proposed highway termed a "defense" project and to be constructed out of federal funds, will leave Route 13 at the Bristol Cemetery and extend parallel with the P. R. R. about halfway between the railroad and the creek. The roadway will cut across an end of Silver Lake, touch the extreme end of Pine street, near where a row of brick houses now stand. The roadway will then touch Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth and Seventh avenues and a corner of the property of the Tan Art Company. It will be known as a "Relocation of Route 150."

Councilman Warner told Council that he thought that Burgess Clifford L. Anderson and Borough Engineer John S. Roberts should be complimented for the manner in which they had succeeded in working out, with the state, the details of the new highway project which are to the advantage of the Borough.

It is planned by the State to construct the highway this summer and to have it completed by September.

Much of the through traffic will be carried over this route by-passing the congested section of Bristol.

The proposed highway is planned by the Federal authorities to facilitate traffic to and from defense plants and defense housing projects. It will also do much to improve traffic conditions between Bristol and Morrisville. The route goes through Edgely and bypasses Tullytown, eliminating the several bridges and dangerous curves between Bristol and Morrisville.

Contract for the collection of garbage was awarded to John Lesnevec, Bristol R. D. No. 1, for the sum of $750. The other bidders were Louis Misoski, Bristol R. D. 1, $2400; E. Paul Patton, Bensalem Township, $1782.

TUESDAY, APRIL 14, 1942

PAN AMERICAN DAY

To commemorate the first International Conference of American States in Washington, April 14, 1890, the United States now has been observing Pan American Day on that date since 1931. It is hardly necessary to say that the year 1942 with all the current emphasis on hemisphere solidarity, will give the annual observance special significance.

At that meeting fifty-two years ago a resolution was adopted that brought about creation of the Commercial Bureau of the American Republics, the organization known to day as the Pan American Union.

The day is observed particularly in schools in all of the twenty-one republics. The initial observance in the United States in 1931 was by Presidential proclamation directing display of the flag on government buildings and asking for appropriate exercises expressive of the cordiality between the United States and its neighbors.

The day should do much to stir interest in the peoples that dwell below the Isthmus. All South America—with the exception of Argentina and Chile, whose predominant racial strains and other foreign attachments render them lukewarm toward democracy in government—will enter enthusiastically into observance of the day.

Friendship between North and South America has become infinitely stronger with the appearance of war and the ties that have been affected will prove of lasting benefit in the days of peace to follow.

EPIC OF VALOR

Bataan served its purpose, which was to give the Allies time to reinforce Australia and to prepare in other sectors to meet the Japanese onslaught. Having served its momentary purpose, it takes its place in history along with other names which signify courage and sacrifice and a spirit which can be conquered only by death.

When the Japanese gained air superiority over the Philippines more than three months ago, thus preventing air or other reinforcements from reaching Gen. Douglas MacArthur's gallant defenders, hope of defeating the invader vanished—and as gallant a band as ever fought under the American flag took their stand on Bataan to sell their lives as dearly as possible.

For more than three months they held off a numerically superior force who was continuously being reinforced until his advantage in manpower and equipment became overwhelming. So, under that intrepid cavalryman, Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, the final chapter—for the present—in the story of Bataan was written, the defenders worn out by a week of incessant attack, their flank turned, surrounded by a foe whose bombers rained an incessant hail of bombs upon them.

Thus the remnants of 36,000 half-starved defenders of a narrow peninsula, thousands of miles from their home shores, were conquered, but the Nipponese paid heavily for their conquest. And the losses which this little Army in Bataan inflicted upon the enemy in its epic three-month struggle is only a taste of what is in store for the yellow devils when a completely equipped and numerically equal American Army, accompanied by superiority in air power, goes into action against them.

GOOD HOUSEKEEPING IS BEST OFFENSIVE FOR CLOTHES MOTHS

By Miss Edna Stephany
(Home Economics Representative)
Those winter wools you'll be putting away soon are going to be more valuable than ever next fall. So don't take any chances on moth damage to them this summer.

Following are some tips from home economists and entomologists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture on ways to protect wool or part wool clothing from clothes moths.

There are likely to be some moths in almost any house or apartment at any time of the year. So don't wait until you see a moth or evidence of moth damage before you take measures to prevent them.

One of the best year-round offenses against moths is good housekeeping. Keep all floors and rugs well swept. Moths often get a start in the part of a rug under a heavy piece of furniture or close to the wall where it may be difficult to sweep thoroughly.

Eliminate all possible breeding places for moths. Never leave wool rags or old wool clothes lying carelessly around the house. Don't let lint or hair accumulate in floor cracks or under the baseboards—or dog or cat hairs. Moths like to eat hair, feathers, and fur as well as wool.

Ordinarily, moths don't bother clothes that you wear frequently. But they are likely to set up housekeeping in a wool coat or dress that hangs in the back of a dark closet for weeks at a time. So even if you aren't wearing the clothing you store, so it's a good idea to play safe by using flake naphthalene, or paradichlorobenzene, or mothballs which contain one or both of these chemicals. As these chemicals evaporate they give off a gas which first discourages the moth larvae from feeding on the wool—then kills the larvae if the gas in concentrated enough. They must be used generously if they are really to do the job.

For safety and convenience, most women like to clear closets of winter clothing as soon as possible.

Store wool garments, gloves, and shoes separately from articles of rayon, cotton, linen, or silk, which need no protection from moths.

Half your battle is won if you make sure you have no moths, moth larvae, or moth eggs on the clothing before you store it. The moths aren't likely to be on the clothing because they fly away the minute they get out in the sunlight. But the tiny, soft, white moth eggs can easily go undetected. In four to eight days in the summer an egg hatches into the worm or larvae that does the real destructive work.

Dry cleaning kills moths, destroys eggs and larvae. So does washing with a strong solution of neutral soap. And so will a good sunning and airing if you accompany it with brisk brushing. Moths can't stand the bright sun, the larvae drop to the ground, and the eggs are crushed or dislodged in the brushing.

Once you get the clothing free of moths, they may be put away in paper bags, wrapped in paper, sealed in boxes, or stored in trunks, chests, or light closets.

Trunks and chests should have tight-fitting lids. And closets set aside especially for storage of wools should have all cracks in plaster and around baseboards filled with crack fillers, a gasket on the door so it can be shut tight all around.

There's always a chance that there the back of a dark closet for weeks at a time. So even if you aren't wearing the clothing you store, so it's a good idea to play safe by using flake naphthalene, or paradichlorobenzene, or mothballs which contain one or both of these chemicals. As these chemicals evaporate they give off a gas which first discourages the moth larvae from feeding on the wool—then kills the larvae if the gas in concentrated enough. They must be used generously if they are really to do the job.

These crystals or balls in a cloth sack and hang them on the neck of the hanger inside a paper protector. Sprinkle them generously between the folds of clothing in boxes, trunks, chests. Put on the top shelf of a closet set aside for storage or hang them in muslin bags from hook.

Naturally, if the gas is to do its work the lid of a box or chest, and the door of a closet must be kept tightly closed, opened only a short time when it is necessary to put something away or to get out a garment.

Crime at Castaway by EDITH BRISTOL

SYNOPSIS

The moment Gerry Lane stepped over the threshold of "Castaway" to become secretary to Walter Gregg, wealthy contractor, she had a feeling of foreboding. It was obvious her employer feared someone or something. Was it Worth Durfee who had sent Gregg's car hurtling over a cliff, seriously injuring him? The latter won a damage suit, now on appeal, and Durfee is trying to settle out of court. Or did it have something to do with the antagonism which existed in his home? Estelle, Gregg's wife, had no love for Martha, his sister, who managed the household. Estelle also objected to Pauline Dawson, Gregg's eccentric first wife, who was staying at the contractor's cottage in nearby Hidden Cove. Sydney Loftus, Estelle's son, was contemptuous of Harry Craven, the suave manager of the Gregg Construction Company, and Lance Gregg, Walter's nephew, who gave up college to assist his uncle following the accident. Gregg warns Gerry to keep his files locked. When Gerry was working on the Gallina Dam records, the company's latest project, Florabelle Hunt, Pauline's maid, slips into the study purportedly with a message for Gregg. While Gerry goes to summon Martha, the woman disappears with a picture of Gregg which hung over the file. Martha belittles the incident, asks Gerry not to mention it to anyone, and replaces the photo with a duplicate. That night, Craven asks Gerry for copies of everything she types for Gregg, under the pretense of trying to make things easier for the convalescing contractor. When she refuses, he warns her against talking. Next day, Gerry overhears Lance warn his uncle, "If you don't act soon there'll be death to pay." Late that night, she hears a car backfire and confused voices.

CHAPTER EIGHT

I knew Dr. Henry was a physician the instant I saw him. The keen, kindly eyes behind his shell-rimmed glasses. The clipped gray beard. The impersonal, detached politeness as, early next morning, he met me at the ranch house door. "You're Mr. Gregg's secretary, aren't you?" "Yes, I'm Miss Lane." "I'm Dr. Henry. I have bad news for you." Behind his courtesy as he held open the door for me was something ominous and threatening. "I hope that you can stand a shock." Now it was coming. Suddenly I had the feeling that I had known this all along. That something evil and sinister had hovered over me—over all of us—since yesterday's storm broke, and now in this blazing bright morning we must face it. I think I clutched at the back of one of the tall chairs in the hall.

"What is it, doctor?" "Mr. Gregg. There's been an—" "Oh, the poor man!" I blurted. "Has he been hurt again?" "Not hurt, Miss Lane. He's dead."

I suppose I must have gasped. I knew I sat down, limp and weak, on the chair while the doctor went on:

"Miss Gregg asked me to tell you she would like to have you come to her sitting room—but not until you finish your breakfast. And, of course, there will be some routine questions for you to answer to the authorities."

The authorities! Then, and for the first time, it flashed across my mind that this death wasn't an ordinary death. It was worse. Ever since I came I had been sure that my employer was frightened, worried, about something I could not name. Now, after so much pain, he must have made up his mind to end the fear and suffering. All I could find to say was, "How terrible!"

I tried to force myself to eat the breakfast Issu served me, but such a jumble of disconnected thoughts raced through my mind. . . . Miss Baldwin's hints . . . the furtive woman in the study . . . yesterday's broken snatches of angry conversation that drifted through the walls . . . and last, with dreadful clearness, the words that still rang horribly in my ears. . . . "If you don't act . . . it may mean death!"

The few crumbs of toast I swallowed made me choke and the coffee I gulped was flat and tasteless. Then, after thinking about everybody else at Castaway, I got around to thinking about Gerry Lane. Here I was, again, back at the same point as when I sat in the employment agency. There'd be a week's salary, of course, maybe more. But if I'd been the kind that breaks down and sobs, I might have broken down and sobbed right then and there in the breakfast room, forgetting the plight of Walter Gregg and remembering how it was going to affect me.

The grim need of hunting a job all over again. The disheartening ordeal of looking for work—it was time to square my shoulders. And I did, before starting to Miss Gregg's sitting room.

Right now would be as good a time as any to sketch the relationship of the rooms at Castaway to one another—since they were of importance to the events taking place in the ranch house. Therefore I'd better give a rough idea of the floor plan of the rambling, Spanish style house. It is wide and spacious, with its main section across the back of the hollow square, but two stories high, fronting the flower filled patio.

In the main, center section, along the ocean side of the square, were the entrance hall, the huge living room, dining room and breakfast room, with the kitchen and servants' quarters extending beyond. The bedrooms are in the upper story.

The east and west wings formed the other sides of the open court. The east wing, already familiar to me, was composed of Mr. Gregg's study—nearest the main section—then, his bath and dressing rooms, and at the end of the wing his bedroom. The passage ran along the patio side.

Opposite, across the patio, Miss Gregg's suite of rooms occupied the west wing; her sitting room directly in line with her brother's study, her bedroom at the end of the wing, opposite his, the width of the broad court between them.

I knocked at the door of Miss Gregg's sitting room and waited, prepared for grief and tears, for I knew the affection linking the twin brother and sister.

But there were no tears. Martha Gregg called "Come in" and I entered. She stood beside the French windows, the spaniels crouched at her feet, their amber eyes fixed on her set face. She looked more like a Diego Rivera painting than before. I thought, so still, so rigid, so unnaturally self-possessed.

I groped awkwardly for the right words to tell her of my sympathy and managed to be only stumbling and incoherent. She helped me out.

"I know, Miss Lane, I understand. I can't talk, quite yet, about my brother. I must be ready to talk about so many other things . . . so many things will have to be done . . . I must be the one to do them . . . I'll need your help."

"Please let me do anything I can—" I began.

"That's why I sent for you," Martha spoke under strain, holding herself tense, keeping her voice level, choosing her words with care. "I'd like to engage you, right now, to work for me. Your work for my brother is over. But just so there'll be no question about your place here, I'm offering you a job as my secretary. Will you take it?"

I assured her I'd be glad to stay, as long as she needed me, to do whatever she wanted done. A flood of relief swept over me that my own immediate problem was so quickly settled.

"There'll be nothing you can do yet—no telegrams nor letters until Dr. Henry and the sheriff finish talking with us. If you'd rather not work in my brother's study, I'll have your things brought in here."

I marveled then—and it was only the first of a long series of wonderments—that in the face of her own grief Martha Gregg could think so calmly and considerably of the feelings of other people.

A sharp knock at the sitting room door broke my reverie. Miss Gregg called, "Come in," and I opened the door. On the threshold with the doctor was a heavy, solid man with massive shoulders and leathery face, with deep-set blue eyes, like the eyes of sailors, little lines running from the corners under black brows. His hair was tinged with gray at the temples and he held a wide-brimmed felt hat in his brown hand.

"Come in, Nathan," Martha Gregg greeted him. "This is Miss Lane. She was Walter's secretary

—now she's going to stay on to help me. Dr. Henry, you met her, I think?"

The doctor bowed. Nathan—I knew he must be Sheriff Allen—looked me over with one quick and searching glance. Then his attention turned back again to Miss Gregg and she moved from her post by the window and came toward him with eager, questioning eyes.

"Well, Nathan?" she almost whispered.

If I had always entertained the idea that officers of the law must be harsh and rough, I changed my mind that instant when Sheriff Nathan Allen spoke to Martha Gregg. His voice was gentle and low, his manner tender as a mother's—

"Look, Martha, there's something the doctor and I have got to tell you—hang on to yourself."

"You've known me all my life. You needn't be afraid to tell me whatever has to be said. What is it?"

"Martha"—Allen took both of her brown hands, with their heavy bracelets, in his own huge grasp—"Martha, your brother didn't kill himself."

"He didn't—what?" "He didn't kill himself. Walter was murdered!"

For a moment I was sure that Martha Gregg was going to crack under the shock of the sheriff's words. Dr. Henry must have thought so, too, for he quickly mixed up a few drops of something aromatic in a glass of water and stood over her while she drank the last drop of the cloudy liquid.

Martha handed the empty glass back to me before anybody spoke. Then she said, "How—how do you know?"

"No human being could have shot himself the way Walter was shot—from clear across the room. And there was no gun."

Martha's face stiffened. Her dark, strong face, so like her brother's. She gripped the arms of her chair.

"Walter had enemies," she said thoughtfully. "No man can rise in the world as Walter rose without making enemies. You'll find the person who did this, Nathan?"

"We will, Martha." Again the gentleness of this big man surprised me. "We'll go over every possible angle. We'll find out who had a motive to kill Walter—or who thought he had, which is more likely—and who had the opportunity. Dr. Henry has telephoned to Lance and Craven over at Gallina now and they should be here any minute now. Estelle and that son of hers are on their way down from the city. Martha, who stands to benefit the most by this death?"

Her answer was instantaneous. "If you mean money, I do."

"You? What about Estelle?" It was plain that Nathan Allen, like Dr. Henry, as old and trusted friends of this stricken household, knew much of the domestic situation—but not all.

"Estelle's share will be all carelessly tied up in a trust fund—Walter has explained that to me."

"Does she know that?" "I don't know. But, I know it."

"And you?" Allen asked. "Castaway is to come to me—clear."

Allen was silent a minute, then went on, deliberately: "I'm not going into this business of motive right now. I want to question all those who were here in the house last night, and I'll take the servants' answers before the others get here. I wish I had my deputy here to take their answers down in shorthand," he added. "We'll find who did it, never fear, Martha." He almost snapped the last statement.

Then I spoke. "I can take down your questions and answers," I volunteered.

"Citizen?" he asked. I nodded.

"Have you lived in the state one year?"

"Hum—" Allen considered me a minute, frowned and nodded. "You'll do. And just to make everything regular, I'll swear you in as a deputy."

So that's how I, a stenographer who had never stepped foot in a courtroom, nor heard a word of testimony, came to find myself, three minutes later, a deputy sheriff of Gallina County—with no badge other than my pencil and notebook.

"Come in, Nathan," Martha Gregg greeted him. "This is Miss Lane. She was Walter's secretary

CHAPTER NINE

"Just as a formality," Allen explained, "we will begin with Martha Gregg." Her statement was brief and direct, and I need not refer to my diary for the facts, as it is all in the record.

"I went to my brother's bedroom about 8 o'clock to see if he was settled for the night, and found him suffering much pain in his injured shoulder. I urged him to take a sleeping pill—you know, Dr. Henry, those you left for him." The doctor nodded.

"My brother promised me he would take the medicine if he didn't go to sleep, and I left him—"

"Did you go to your room then?" asked the sheriff.

"Not immediately. I got my car from the garage and drove up the valley to the stables to see about my colt, Hoodoo. He was being ailing all this week, and I wanted to make sure the groom was following the vet's instructions. I stayed at the stables for half an hour—maybe longer—so it must have been nearly nine when I reached the ranch house again, garaged my car and came in. I came in through the kitchen and went into my own sitting room—this room—and only looked across the patio to see whether there was a light in the bedroom opposite. It was dark, so I took it for granted that my brother had gone to sleep."

"Did you hear any noises in the night?" Allen asked. "Did the dogs bark?"

"Nothing unusual. Lance and Craven—are in the habit of coming in late when they are stopping at the ranch, so I am in the habit of hearing cars drive in. I heard a car backfire some time in the night. None of the dogs barked. The rain made some noise and so did the wind—but not enough to arouse me. I heard nothing from my brother's part of the house until Kobe came running to my door about 6—that's when I telephoned you—"

That was all there was to Martha Gregg's statement and she made it in the same controlled voice that she had used ever since I entered her room.

My own story was even briefer. I had visited in the big living room with Miss Gregg until 8—the hour when she left to see her brother. Then I had crossed to my bungalow, read for an hour or so, heard the sound of backfire and a motor running, the wind and rain—that was all.

"Could you fix the hour of any of these sounds?" the sheriff asked me and I took down his question and my own answer.

"No. I did not look at my watch." Issu, a lighter brown than before from fright, and the cook and housemaid (who were man and wife) came next. They had even less to contribute. After their work was over they had gone to their quarters.

In three long steps Lance was across the room with his arms around Martha . . . he patted her shoulder in wordless consolation.

ters—they had rooms above the garage—had heard Miss Gregg's car drive out and, about 9, had heard it drive in again. All agreed no dogs had barked. They had not heard the sound of the backfire—nor had any other noises aroused them in the night.

Kobe's examination yielded more of value. The neat little chap was shaking still from his dreadful discovery of the early morning and Allen handled him considerably, I thought.

"What time did you last see Mr. Gregg last night?" he began.

"Please, about half past 8. Mr. Gregg told me somebody is coming—to let him in. Issu has gone to his sleeping place above the garage—it is his job to answer door rings, but when door rings Mr. Gregg says this is man who telephoned. Will I go? I let him in at front door. He explain he is man who telephoned to Mr. Gregg."

"But who was it?" Martha spoke eagerly. "Walter didn't tell me he was expecting anyone."

"Please, the gentleman did not give name, but somebody did telephone earlier. He say 'Mr. Gregg is expecting me' so I let him into bedroom. Then Mr. Gregg instruct me to go to my own room—that is back of the kitchen. He said 'Do not come back unless I ring.' He did not ring. I wait until maybe 10 o'clock studying English text books. The strange gentleman did not seem to go out and I am slightly concerned." Kobe sucked his teeth and looked helplessly from the doctor to the sheriff. "If I have done a wrong thing you will forgive me, please . . . but when a Japanese boy is instructed by the gentleman who employs him please do not return, what is Japanese boy expected, then, to do?"

"Go on, Kobe," Allen said, "what next?"

"At 10 o'clock I come outside the house and stand in the patio. There is a light in Miss Gregg's room—here where we are—but no light in Mr. Gregg's room. So what can I think except that the strange genleman have concluded his visit and departed. All is quiet—so I go to bed."

Noises of motors speeding up the hill road, screeching of brakes pulled to a sudden stop on the gravel slope before the garage, and sound of rapid feet running across the patio broke in on Kobe's words. My eyes were fixed on my notebook and so I did not see who it was that crossed the court—but almost immediately afterward there was a quick knock on the sitting room door. Dr. Henry opened it and Lance Gregg strode into the room. He nodded to the sheriff and the doctor and in three long steps was across the room with his arms around Martha. Neither spoke.

She best her head against his breast and he patted her shoulder in wordless consolation. So they stood for a minute or two and the room was again so silent that the ticking of the clock on the mantle became a loud noise, and the distant beating of the surf came like muted drums through the open windows.

Lance broke the silence first. "I am very sorry I interrupted you gentlemen. Please go ahead with what you were saying when I broke in on you."

But before Allen could frame the next question for the still frightened Kobe, another knock, this time soft and measured, sounded at the door and again the doctor opened it. This time it was Harry Craven.

rolls burned to the ground 22 Japanese warehouses loaded with military supplies. The latest War Department communiqué reported a similar raid in the area, and this time Wainwright's men burned eight enemy warehouses, loaded with food.

The communiqué also reported that Wainwright's men blasted two enemy gun columns operating on Bataan and sank a medium-sized Japanese vessel on the coast of the peninsula in Manila Bay.

This tended to support War Department claims that recent heavy bombing raids caused little damage to military installations on Corregidor and other Manila Bay forts.

Significantly, also, the successful counter barrages came only a few hours after the same guns sunk and fired an undisclosed number of Japanese invasion boats in Mariveles harbor on Bataan, and after anti-aircraft guns had repulsed the 22nd air raid in 48 hours.

Since the large scale bombing attacks of Corregidor were resumed by the Japanese six days ago following the collapse of the Bataan defenses, the War Department has reported repeatedly that damage to military installations has been light and casualties small.

The loss of Cebu virtually was conceded. However, when Wainwright reported that communications between headquarters and the central Philippine island have been cut since invading force of 12,000 established beachheads at scattered points, outflanking the tiny defending force.

Even Japanese domination of the strategic and important cities on Cebu does not necessarily mean the end of resistance there, military experts contend. Hiding in the hills and jungles, small bands of defenders are expected to continue harassing the Japanese.

Military analysts decline even to guess how much longer Corregidor may be able to hold out without reinforcements or supplies, but recent successes indicate that Wainwright intends to make the Japanese pay a terrific price for further gains in the Manila area.

Meanwhile, there has been no further word from the 36,800 American-Filipino troops entrapped on Bataan, but the War Department still has hopes of hearing details about its forces on the peninsula.

"When such reports are received, the War Department will promptly notify the next of kin in each case," the communiqué stated.

Bataan may be gone, but the invaders still do not dominate the vast Philippine commonwealth, and determined defenders continue to take a heavy toll of the enemy.

Council Aids Building of New Roadway Here

Patton is the present collector whose contract expires May 1st. The price paid him on the present contract was $816 so the Borough is getting a lower price under the new contract.

The contract was awarded to the lowest bidder upon the recommendation of the Health and Sanitation Committee.

Council discussed at length traffic conditions at Mill street and the Highway, and at Bath, Otter and Mill streets. Attention was called by Councilman Myers to the dangerous conditions to pedestrians at Bath and Otter streets. Council referred the matter for study to the Street and Highway Committee in conjunction with the Borough Engineer who is to contact the State Highway Department requesting that a study of conditions at that point be made. They are state routes.

The opinion was prevalent that left turns off the Highway should be prohibited.

The condition of the Rumpf mill on Buckley street was called to the attention of Council by Councilman Roche, Fourth Ward. Mr. Roche informed Council that the building is a menace, a fire hazard and a danger to the community. It was referred to the Fire Department to investigate.

Sewing project reported distribution of 2160 garments.

The usual donations of $50 each were made to Col. J. M. Gosline Camp, Sons of Veterans and Robert W. Bracken Post American Legion toward Memorial Day expenses.

Police reported making 37 arrests during the month of March and the cases were disposed of as follows: Fined, 20; committed to county jail, 8; held for court, 5; continued, 1; turned over to Norristown police, 1; discharged, 2.

Request for a street light near Cedar and Walnut streets was made by trustees of First Baptist Church. The request was referred to Street and Highway committee with power to act. Councilmen absent were Mulligan, Mitchener and Rathke.

Vitamins in Bowl Salads Tempt Even the Gourmets

In a dinner planned by a gourmet, a bowl salad is almost invariably included as a principal course. Victory gardeners are advised to follow this example, since here is one way in which the palate may be delighted, and the nutritional requirements of the family satisfied at the same time.

Most delicious of the green leafy foods, which are highest in vitamin content, are the salad leaves; and the finest of these are easily grown in the Victory garden. Vitamin tables show that leaf lettuce, producing green leaves, which will grow luxuriantly in any home garden, are forty times richer in Vitamin A than the tight heading lettuce, of which the inner leaves have been bleached white.

Famous chefs who pride themselves on their salads, generally agree in preferring leaf lettuce, or romaine (cos lettuce) over the heading type. One uncooked salad may be served every day at dinner with a great variety of nutritious ingredients produced in the Victory garden. Bowl salad addicts often have a ritual, in which they mix the dressing at the table, and toss the salad in the wooden bowl, which is first rubbed with a clove of garlic in order to impart a suggestion of its flavor. While olive oil is plentiful in war time, corn oil and other vegetable oils are plentiful and serve quite well for dressing.

Leaf lettuce comes in two types—the butter leaves and the crisp leaves. The butter leaves are thicker, and darker green, with finer flavor, the experts say. Crisp leaves are lighter green in color, thin and somewhat brittle. Examples are Black Seeded Simpson, a butter type, and Grand Rapids, a crisp type.

ids, a crisp leaf type. Experts give first place in their esteem to the butter leaves.

Romaine or cos lettuce, which produces oval leaves, standing upright, is highly esteemed by French salad experts. It is a good late lettuce, standing heat better than the leaf varieties. The leaves can be bleached by tying them up as they near maturity, but this merely changes their color, and lessens their vitamin content.

For summer leaves, chicory, also known as endive, is more available than lettuce, which usually runs to seed in midsummer. Endive may be had with curly leaves, or broad leaves. Many like the curly leaves best for summer, and broad leaves (escarolle) for fall, as they endure frost and become sweeter after the first frosts. Sow both types in drills, thin out to six or eight inches.

Leaf crops grown in a similar manner, and much esteemed in bowl salads, include corn salad, which is very hardy and can be harvested late in the fall; and upland garden cress, which gives a pungent flavor to the salad.

In the fall lettuce may be grown again; and the Chinese cabbage leaves are delicious. Chinese cabbage may be grown in the spring, with rich soil and an early start. But in midsummer, it always runs to seed. A late crop has no such tendency, and heads are easily produced in the fall, from plants started in late June.

All leaf crops demand rich soil. They must grow fast without check, otherwise the leaves are tough and have a bitter flavor. Plant food should be applied to the soil in which they grow at the rate of 4 pounds to 100 square feet.

The More Dollars You SAVE in War Savings Bonds... The More "Axis-Crushers" Our Army Will Have

AMERICA must produce 45,000 tanks this year! 60,000 planes! 20,000 anti-aircraft guns! Altogether, 56 billion dollars' worth of fighting equipment to smash the military maniacs attacking us.

That's why billions of fighting dollars—your dollars saved for War Savings Bonds and Stamps—are needed and needed now!

That's why every American man, woman, and child must put every dime and dollar not into auto tires, but into automatic rifles—not into luxuries, but into tanks—not into spending for the pursuit of happiness, but into War Savings Bonds for the relentless pursuit of our enemies.

An important part of America's job, your job, this year is to spend less and save more—to invest in safety with perfect safety! Not only does the U. S. Government guarantee your money, it guarantees to give you $4 for every $3 you save in War Savings Bonds when you hold the Bonds to maturity! In fact, $18.75 brings you $25 with absolutely no effort or work on your part!

Make up your mind right now to save for War Savings Bonds—regularly. Set aside as much as you can. Make every pay day Bond day! Remember, you can start saving for a Bond by getting War Savings Stamps for as little as 10 cents.

You Get a $25 Bond for only $18.75

Facts About War Savings Bonds

How Much Do You Cost?	Upon Maturity You Get Back
$18.75 ... $25.00
$37.50 ... $50.00
$75.00 ... $100.00
$375.00 ... $500.00
$750.00 ... $1000.00

When is maturity? Ten years, but you can cash the Bonds at any time after 60 days from their issue date. Naturally, the longer you hold the Bond, up to 10 years, the more money you'll get back. But you'll never get less than you put in.

What's the interest rate? When held to maturity, the Bonds yield 2.9% per year on your investment, compounded semi-annually—you get back $4 for every $3 you save in War Savings Bonds.

Where do I go to buy a Bond? To your local Bank, Post Office, Savings and Loan Association, or other War Savings Bond agency.

When should I buy a Bond? Start now; buy regularly.

SERGEANT PAT OF RADIO PATROL

By EDDIE SULLIVAN and CHARLIE SCHMIDT

Sugarless - But NOT Sweetless - Cake

By BETTY BARCLAY

Sugarless — but OH so good! You'll like all of them. And they don't use up one gram of your precious sugar!

Chocolate Covered Sugarless Cake
2 1/4 cups sifted cake flour
2 1/4 teaspoons double-acting baking powder

1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup butter or other shortening
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
1 cup light corn syrup
2 eggs, unbeaten
1/2 cup milk
1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt, and sift together three times. Cream shortening with orange rind; add syrup gradually, beating well after each addition. Add 1/4 of flour and beat until smooth and well blended. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each. Add remaining flour in thirds, alternately with milk in halves, beating very well after each addition. For best results, beat cake very well at each stage of mixing. Add vanilla. Bake in two greased 8-inch layer pans in moderate oven (375° F.) 30 minutes, or until done. Spread Prune Filling between layers and whipped cream, flavored with vanilla, on top of cake.

Chocolate Chip Frosting. Place layers on baking sheet, having one layer top-side down. Cover tops with semi-sweet chocolate chips, using 2 packages. Heat in moderate oven (350° F.) 6 minutes, or until chips are just softened. (Cake may be frosted while warm. Heat only 3 minutes.) Remove from oven. Spread softened chips over bottom layer, letting chocolate run down on sides. Arrange top layer and spread as before. Then spread sides evenly.

Prune Spice Sugarless Cake
2 1/4 cups sifted cake flour
2 1/4 teaspoons double-acting baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1/4 teaspoon cloves
1/2 cup butter or other shortening
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 cup light corn syrup

2 eggs, unbeaten
1/2 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt, and spices, and sift together three times. Cream shortening with lemon rind; add syrup gradually, beating well after each addition. Add one quarter of flour and beat until smooth and well blended. Add eggs one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add remaining flour in thirds, alternately with milk in halves, beating very well after each addition. For best results, beat cake very well at each stage of mixing. Add vanilla. Bake in two greased 8-inch layer pans in moderate oven (375° F.) 30 minutes, or until done. Spread Prune Filling between layers and whipped cream, flavored with vanilla, on top of cake.

Prune Filling. Place 3 1/2 tablespoons cornstarch in top of double boiler. Add 1 cup prune juice gradually, then add a dash of salt, 2 teaspoons lemon juice, 1 teaspoon grated orange rind, and 1/2 teaspoon grated lemon rind. Mix thoroughly. Cook over direct heat until thickened, stirring constantly. Add 2 tablespoons corn syrup and mix well. Then cook over boiling water 12 minutes, stirring occasionally. Cool. Add 1/2 cup chopped nut meats, if desired.

Chocolate Chip Crunchies
1 package Semi-sweet Chocolate Chips
5 cups corn flakes
1 1/2 cups or 1 can sweetened condensed milk

Combine chocolate chips and corn flakes. Add condensed milk and mix well. Drop from teaspoon on greased baking sheet; flatten slightly, shaping edges with spoon. Bake in slow oven (325° F.) 15 minutes, or until done. Remove from baking sheet immediately, using knife or spatula. Makes about 40 crunchies.

Note: If crunchies stick, place pan over very low flame for a few seconds.

Taylor, along with Martin and his running mates for other State-wide nominations, spoke at a luncheon at the Bellevue-Stratford, attended by 43 of the 51 R-publican organization ward leaders and party officials, and marking the opening of the general's Philadelphia campaign.

Taylor, along with Republican City Chairman David W. Harris, extolled Martin as the type of candidate who should be Pennsylvania's war Governor, because of 44 years of military experience.

Discussing America's position in the war, General Martin declared the "only way we will be safe is to build a strong air force and carry the fight to our enemies."

Other speakers were State Secretary of Banking John C. Bell, Jr., candidate for Lieutenant Governor; Secretary of

Defenders Like These Papers, Army Men Say

Nothing makes a selective service man in camp happier than a letter from home or a home-town newspaper in the daily mail, army officials said recently after an extensive survey.

Next in order, the selective service youth likes sweets such as candy, cookies and chocolates—and chewing gum!

Officers say that on the march the gum helps keep the boys from drinking too much water and from dipping into their lunch ration.

Other offerings which bring a smile of pleasure to the enrollee include a general repertoire of utilities among which are books of stamps, flashlights, a towel now and then, toilet articles, and reading materials.

Officers say that if relatives want to be sure their addressee gets what's mailed to him, they should address the letter or package in this way: Name first, his company or battery second, his regiment third, and, lastly the name of the post office.

Today's Quiet Moment

(By the Rev. James R. Galley)

Pastor, Bristol Presbyterian Church
O Thou Who art Love, help us to love one another as Thou dost love us; to be gentle and unselfish and forgiving; to be good children to our Heavenly Father. When we are troubled, do Thou quiet our fears. When we are tempted, do Thou grant us the victory. When we are sick, may Thine everlasting arms encircle us; and when we go astray, O dear Shepherd, seek us and bring us home again. May our hearts be glad in the knowledge of Thy love. SAILOR LASSIES

LONDON—(INS)—For the first time in British history, women are replacing men as sailors, in certain British naval harbors and taking over the work of manning tenders, ferry-boats, and other small craft. On larger ships women are being employed as cooks, mess stewards, and clerks—but, as authorities during the past week at the ties here point out, it is unlikely that home of her brother-in-law and sister.

TIP TO GARDENERS

COLLEGE STATION, Md.—(INS)—“Victory” gardeners will be more likely to reap a successful harvest this summer if they plant vegetables which are seldom attacked by the Japanese beetle, says Dr. George S. Langford, specialist in insect control for the University of Maryland Extension Service. He pointed out that cabbage, carrots, lettuce, peas, spinach and tomatoes are among the vegetables which may be planted with success.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND THEATRE

“We’re the only two people in the world who have been successful doing nothing,” is the way Ole Olsen explains the fantastic accomplishments of Olsen and Johnson in the entertainment world, the latest of which is their Mayfair Productions movie “Hellzapoppin’” now playing at Grand Theatre.

“Yeah,” chuckled Chic Johnson, “and we’ve been getting paid for it too!”

Johnson is right; they have been paid, and plenty; but records show Olsen is wrong when he says they’ve been doing nothing.

Contrary to most self-made success stories, Olsen and Johnson have never had heartbreak and struggle in their climb to success.

True, they did start in humble beginnings—a sub-basement honkey-tonk night club in Chicago nearly thirty years ago.

RITZ THEATRE

Silent movies are back.

At least that’s the way it looked recently. Marlene Dietrich, Fred MacMurray, her co-star, Aline MacMahon and others in “The Lady Is Willing” went through most of the day’s scenes without making a sound so that Baby Corey could be heard to coo.

Though the average screen life of a star is usually set at five years, Frankie Darro has been before the cameras for the past 19 years, starting when he was four, and is now more popular than ever. Frankie comes to the Ritz Theatre as the star of “Let’s Go Collegiate.”

FIFTY GIRLS REPORT TO COACH SMITH FOR SOFTBALL PRACTICE AT BENSELEM TOWNSHIP SCHOOL; SEASON STARTS WED.

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Apr. 14—Close to fifty girls have reported to Coach Helen Smith for softball practice. The Owlettes will open their season tomorrow afternoon, meeting the Langhorne team at Langhorne. Last season, the Bensalem girls won the Lower Bucks County championship for the second consecutive year.

Members of last season's squad returning to action and almost certain for positions are: Ellen Piuma, shortstop; Doris Cribble, shortstop; Doris Ely, first base; Gail King and Hazel Lamont, outfielders; Eleanor Hughes, catcher; Grace VanHorn, pitcher; Edna Meisinger, second base; Mildred Vansant, third base; Dorothy Turner, outfielder.

The team is being managed by Doris Gonzalez and Dougherty and Deans are the assistants.

Bad weather the past week hampered the practice sessions of the squad but with the above named players returning, Coach Smith expects little trouble in her opening game.

The Bensalem team will do its traveling in the school bus for their away games.

At a meeting of the Lower Bucks girls' coaches, the following were some of the rules adopted:

The rules will be those under the 1942 softball official guide of the A. J. Barnes and Company.

The boys' coaches shall be the umpires of all games plus a good base umpire.

Coaches should be notified of cancelled games before noon of the day the game is scheduled.

All games shall start promptly at 3:30 o'clock.

HIS YEAR? By Jack Sords

TOUCHING ALL BASES

Rounding the Bags in Lower Bucks County As Well As in National Arenas

With JACK GILL

The America that we have known since birth is today facing the crossroads of its history. Since the earliest of inhabitants began landing on its shores, the land has been one of greatness and freedom offering boundless opportunities for the industrious and shelter and protection for the harassed. Those persecuted in religious beliefs; those imprisoned for debt; those shovled in the background owing to poor birth; those weary of wars and taxation without representation—those and many others sought America at the start not as a spontaneous volcano offering riches and bounties at every turn, but as a fertile valley green with characteristics that are "big" in the hearts of "big" men.

Those human beings were miserable wretches in Europe at that time. They were men and women born of equal rights, but shorn of individual freedom by ruling lords drunk with the power of characteristics of a directly opposite nature. Wherein the common masses at that time were the goodly crowd, those in charge de'affairs were inhuman in tendencies toward the governed. They robbed them of their meagre medium of exchange and stymied union of any form. The general population, continually disrupted in enterprises of an associated nature, never had a chance. They were doomed as free individuals.

So they sought America as a haven of refuge. High school history books are breaking at the seams with arduous trials and tribulations absorbed by those early founding fathers. The hours were longer than our present set-up, the storms wrecked havoc with crops more often than not, failure often times cut the stomach from the throat and life as a whole wasn't as gay and carefree as it is today.

Fun in those times consisted not of elaborate sporting spectacles and of minutely planned cinemas. The only fun they had evolved from a bit of bowling on the lawn on a Saturday afternoon or some kind of a dance in the village hall. But that was early America and since that time we have progressed a great deal.

Civilization came at the very beginning of this country. Man, as deeply embroiled in toil as he was at the start, for the first time accepted the realization that he was truly and wholly a "man." Here, then, was something decent and corporeal. Here, in the green valleys of America, was freedom to worship, freedom to think, freedom to work, freedom to form associations beneficial to mankind as a unit and freedom in nearly everything.

again. Then, after we had finished the joy ride, we blamed it on Hoover and the government, when in reality we ourselves spoiled it all.

Finally came the depression and years of struggle and hardship. Men were still equal in rights and capable of performing nearly anything with their hands and brains, but industry, business and finance stood at a temporary and damaging standstill.

All life wasn't in the local manufacturing plant at all. The "streamlining" we had blueprinted was all right to a certain extent. It created a new era and made life easier. But it made the entire population practically dependent upon each other. Gone was something intangible but not possible to retain in the life of a forward race of people.

Present statistics prove that America hasn't as yet recovered from the man-wrought depression. Only a damaging war that ravages over all of the world has inflicted a temporary halt to its march. After it ceases America must re-adjust itself to a new and better way of life.

At this hour America cannot stand divided. The war, if anything, lines the good against the bad in what may be a struggle to end all struggles. The good, watched over by Divine Guidance, aided and abetted by strong Americans, will and must eventually triumph.

We're fighting not to settle supremacy. We're fighting for our right to vote and to be represented in the halls of government. We're fighting for the right to respect and pay devoted homage to one Great Ruler in any church we may see fit. We're fighting for the right to live as we please, to do as we want and to see that the "good" shall prosper and survive and that the "no goods" shall be either reformed or punished.

We've got to start pitching high fast balls fast and furious. We've got to watch out for spoils systems within our government, but we cannot allow politics to interfere with our total and "all-out" war production. We respect and hold fast to our bill of rights and shall guide our own destinies. We're a great bunch when the chips are riding on the table and if they were ever at stake, today is the day. No one believes in war and our love for peace divided. The war, if anything, lines that peace now relies upon one item—TO WIN THIS WAR FAST.

We progressed and assumed a false sense of smartness for quite a lengthy period. Sure, we got too darn smart for our own benefit in an unpleasant sort of way. Let's not get too smart to live!

It's getting late . . . the alarm clock is ringing and it's a general alarm . . . Let's WAKE UP AMERICA . . .

THE WRIGHT MAN By Jack Sords

THIS ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUN COSTS $50,000

YOUR HOUSE may not be a military target, but bombs don't stop to inquire. Bombs don't ask your name or the names of your children, either. In this war, as in no other in history, we are all targets. Blackouts merge soldiers and civilians alike. "War is hell" . . . for all of us. And it is costly . . . for all of us.

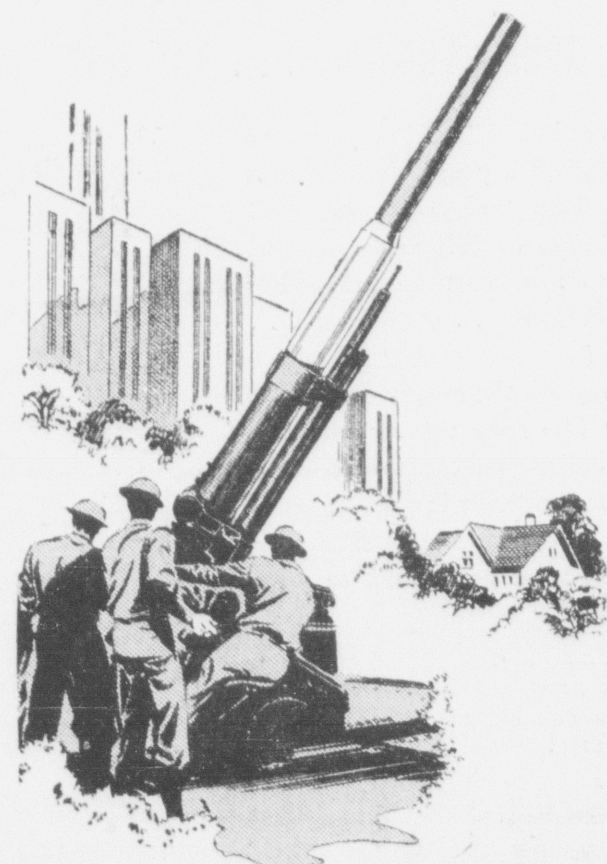

Who's going to pay the bill? Not only for the guns, but for the tanks and ships and planes our boys must have to smash the Axis?

Who? Why, all of us . . . you and me and the man next door. Because we are all in this war, and because blood and tears and sweat don't mean a thing if they do not come from everybody. Everybody must put every dime and dollar he can spare into Bonds and Stamps, even if it means going without something else . . . realizing that we are apt to go without everything, unless we win.

Remember you can start buying Bonds by buying Stamps for as little as 10 cents and that you get a $25 Bond (maturity value) for only $18.75.

$50,000 for one 90-millimeter anti-aircraft gun sounds like a lot of money, doesn't it? But this type gun is a real "plane-crasher" one shell from it can smash a half-million dollar Jap bomber quicker than you can sweet a fly.
